

Prioritising what matters

An introduction how to create a sustainable workday and reduce stress

Markus, Elsa, Walter Jägermeister

BJJ, skiing

Project manager

Maria Fransson

FILL ANOTHER 20 HOURS EACH WEEK WITH IMPORTANT WORK?

Many tasks at the same time

COMMON PITFALLS

Pitfall 1

Email takes control of the day

COMMON PITFALLS

Pitfall 2

Constant availability

COMMON PITFALLS

Pitfall 3

Important work that is invisible

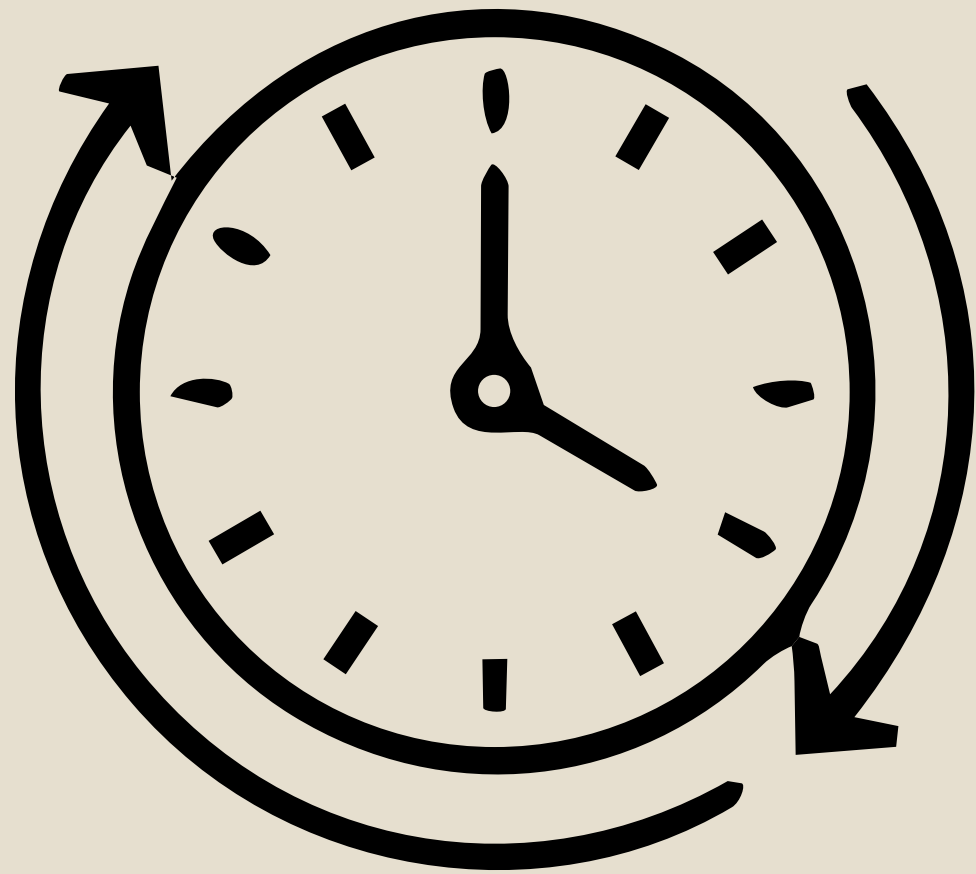

COMMON PITFALLS

Pitfall 4

Saying YES too often

WHAT ACTUALLY CREATES VALUE?

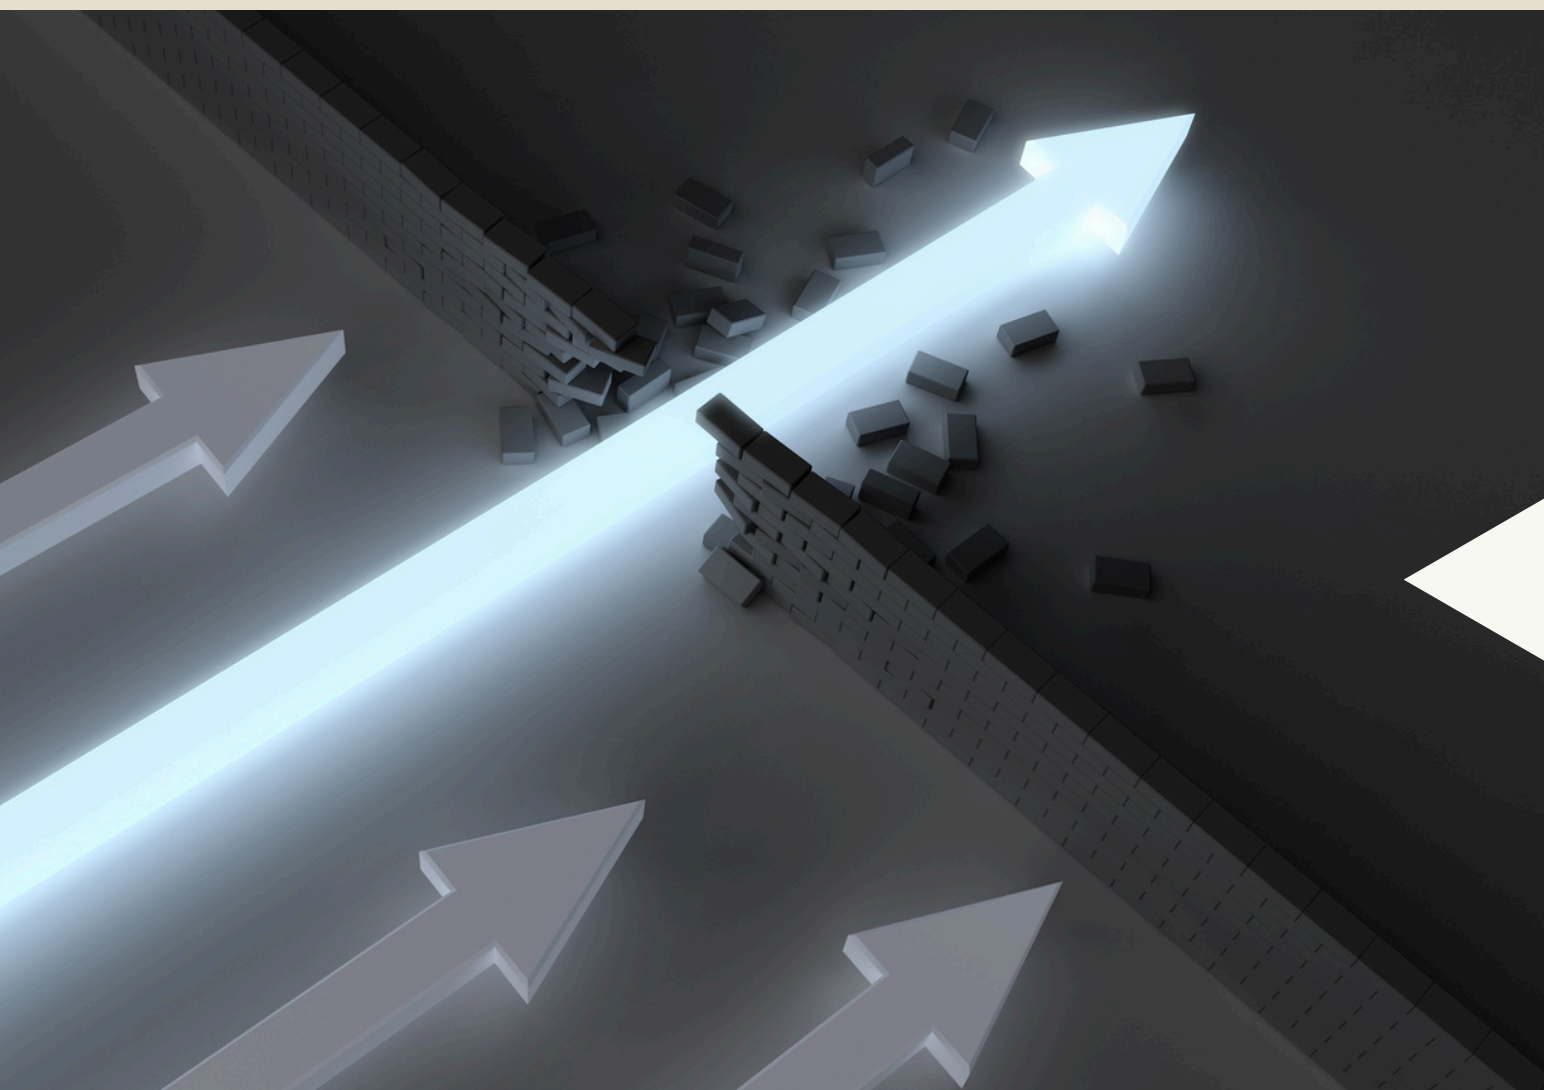

ACTIVITY

IMPACT

For some it could be:

- writing an article
- analysing research data
- developing research ideas
- preparing grant applications

For others it is:

- improving examination
- developing cours material
- providing high-value student feedback

HIGH VALUE WORK

5 PRACTICAL TOOLS

1. EISENHOWER MATRIX
2. PRIORITIZE FROM VALUE
3. MANAGING ENERGY
4. FOCUS AREAS
5. SHARED PRIORITIES

Bråttom

Ej bråttom

Viktigt

Gör nu

Prioritera för att
utföra direkt

Schemalägg

Schemalägg för
senare utförande

Ej viktigt

Delegera

Vilka uppgifter
kan du lägga på
någon annan?

Kasta

Dessa uppgifter
kan du med gott
samvete kasta

Källa: Eisenhower-matrisen

Does this activity contribute to:

- new knowledge?
- student learning?
- research funding?
- long-term academic development?

If not...

Why are we doing it?

HIGHLY DEMANDING COGNITIVE WORK

MORNING

ADMINISTRATIVE WORK

AFTERNOON

WEEKS 3 MOST IMPORTANT

- Read research
- Complete article
- Prep next weeks class

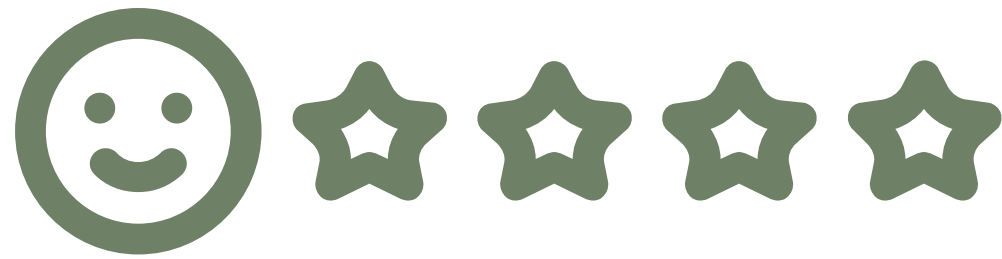

SHARED PRIORITIES

What are our department's most important priorities?

What are our research group's priorities?

Which activities could be reduced or eliminated?

Which responsibilities require clearer ownership?

INDIVIDUAL REFLECTION

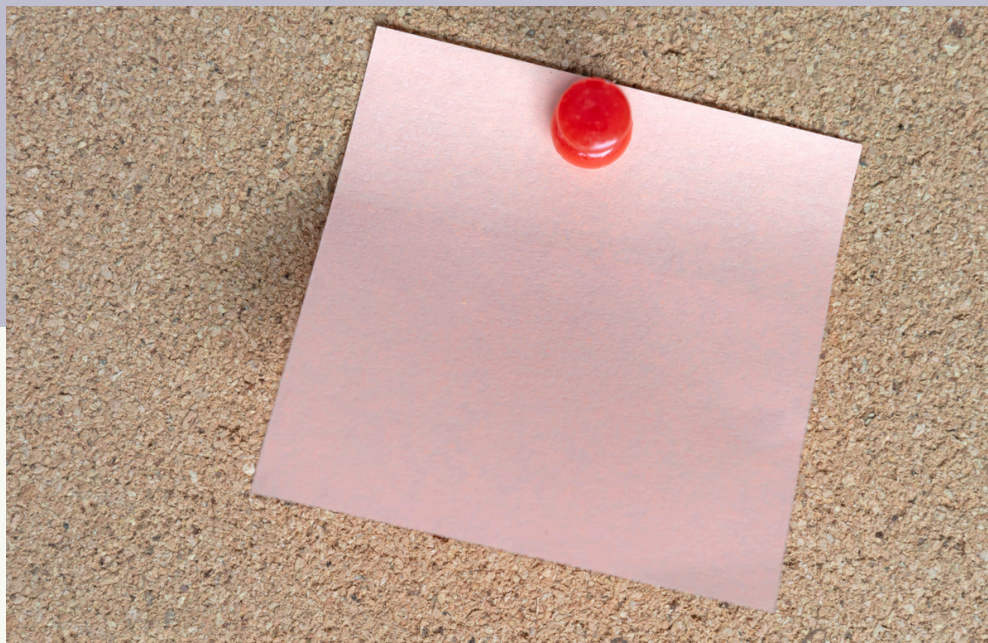

- How is your working week currently divided?
- How would you want it to be?
- Which activities create the greatest long-term value?
- Sort activities
- Be honest with yourself

GROUP DISCUSSION

- What are the biggest time drains in our department?
- Which administrative processes create the least value?
- How can we better protect time for research and educational development?
- How can we create more opportunities for uninterrupted, focused work?
- How can we help each other prioritise instead of creating unnecessary interruptions?
- How can we build a culture where it is acceptable to decline tasks that do not contribute to our strategic goals?

CLOSING REFLECTION

The single most important task to focus on during the next two weeks

One activity I will stop doing - or do less of

One concrete action I will take to protect time for high-value academic work